

Attention (Chisom Nwosu)

According to the World Food Programme, “Nearly 3.7 million Sudanese children under-5 are acutely malnourished, and 750,000 are severely acutely malnourished.”

In Sudan, many children wake up every day not knowing if they have another meal. The current conflict in Sudan, along with a drought and a system that has left thousands of families with nothing. This causes young children to have to live with the reality of dealing with an empty stomach. Could you imagine being a child who wakes up not being able to go to school, play with your friends, but instead having to worry about your next meal? This crisis is happening right now, and it is causing the deaths of many children and dreams being destroyed in Sudan.

Need (Tamanna Mahey)

If this crisis continues, many more children will die due to starvation, and millions will suffer from life long health problems, as according to the European Civil Protection and Humanitarian Aid Operations. Malnutrition doesn't just cause hunger- it weakens the body and lessens its ability to fight off diseases, and impairs muscle development and growth. These children won't even have a chance at a normal life if they keep suffering under these terrible conditions.

According to UNICEF, every passing day the conditions of this famine are getting more severe, and the effects are catastrophic especially for children. It is not an issue we can push aside and forget. It is an emergency that must be dealt with as urgently as possible, to avoid the loss of countless more lives.

Thesis: The best way to combat child hunger in Sudan is by raising awareness and donating to UNICEF, which is a trusted organization that can provide food and even medical care, and nutritional support to starving children.

Satisfaction (Malani)

There is a way to help. Organizations like UNiCEF and the world food programme are on the ground everyday providing food, clean water, medical care. By donating even a small amount we can make a real difference.

Just a few dollars can provide nutrient rich food packets to save a child from malnutrition. Larger donations help fund long term solutions such as farming programs and clean water systems so families can sustain themselves in the future.

If you can't donate you can still play a part:

- Share their stories on social media.
- Talk about Sudan's crisis with friends and family.
- Encourage others to learn and get involved.

Together these actions build momentum and make global change possible.

Visualization (Ethan Nguyen)

Now imagine yourself in the shoes of a child in Sudan. Walking through the streets, you reach for your stomach only to realize a deep and aching pressure. You look down at your shoes to only feel the ground at your feet. This is pressure; it's not a matter of what you might have for dinner, but it's the type of pressure of whether you'll wake up the next morning hoping that you can have at least one bite of the things we take for granted. Now, picture what a single tiny piece of our lives could do for a child. The chance to dream. The chance to be able to wake up the next morning knowing that they can walk on solid ground. Every day, we live life not knowing how truly lucky we are.

(Famine Tightens Grip on Sudan, With Civilians Trapped and Aid Blocked, 2025)
(Index, 2025)

Action (Jared Lomeli)

Now that you understand the struggles that these children go through involving food scarcity in Sudan, it's time to help them out.

You can go to <https://www.unicef.org/appeals/sudan> and give any amount of money that you can afford right now. Even small donations can provide emergency food that can save lives.

If you're not in a stable financial position, you can still help by raising awareness about UNICEF's efforts on your social media through reposts, as well as word-of-mouth.

Every action counts. By donating and spreading the word today, you can become part of the global movement that helps bring hope to the hungry children and give them hope for tomorrow.

References

After 500 days under siege, children in Sudan's Al Fasher face starvation, mass displacement, and deadly violence. (n.d.). UNICEF. https://www.unicef.org/press-

releases/after-500-days-under-siege-children-sudans-al-fasher-face-starvation-mass

European Civil Protection and Humanitarian Aid Operations. (n.d.). Sudan's children are suffering – this is how conflict is destroying their future. https://civil-protection-

humanitarian-aid.ec.europa.eu/news-stories/stories/sudans-children-are-suffering-how-conflict-destroying-their-future_en

Famine tightens grip on Sudan, with civilians trapped and aid blocked. (2025, November

3). UN News. <https://news.un.org/en/story/2025/11/1166253>

Index, G. H. (2025, October 8). Sudan. Global Hunger Index (GHI).

<https://www.globalhungerindex.org/sudan.html>

World Food Programme. (2024). Sudan hunger crisis: WFP calls for funds and humanitarian access to avert famine. <https://www.wfp.org/stories/sudan-hunger-crisis-wfp-calls-funds-and-humanitarian-access-avert-famine>