

Tab 1

Student A: Online vs (Good) in person classes Lots of note card, good hook(raise of hands), clear topic and reasons, little body movement, good information, scripted?, good conclusion(in summary), good closure and connection to audience (although slightly too long)

Student B: Traffic? Use VTA rather than cars? More tax money into VTA? Eye contact, lack of evidence, use of common sense and numbers($$), lots of filler words, no note cards, unclear topic, feels more informational than persuasive, personal conclusion(opinion based)

Student C: Play more video games! Engaging with audience, good studies, good movement, couple pauses, sort of repeating points, connection to audience, call to action, takeaway from speech

---

Tab 2

Student D: Reading note cards, good citations, scripted?, lack of body movement, good pro, con, rebuttal format, good hook(poll question), clear but lengthy rebuttal. Good conclusion. Lengthy conclusion

Student E: Good body movement, clear speaking, Good thesis, good points, lacking flow but good organization, reading note cards, good citations, good conclusion.

Student F: Weak hook (poll). Relatable topic, Clear preview of reasons, unable to follow some sections of the speech, not reading note cards too much, good pros, Cons felt “delayed”, Repetitive reasons. Good, concise conclusion. Good eye contact